Heat Prostration

The obvious conclusion indicated by discussion of the unsuccessful attempt to railroad an important revenue bill through congress in five days is that President Roosevelt was guilty of a bad blunder A move to strengthen his political position had the unexpected effect of weakening his position

This conclusion is not related directly to the subject matter of the proposal which led to the blunder Mr Roosevelt's anti bigness and anti wealth taxation program is concerned only to the extent of its relation to politics which obviously was the focal point of his interest in it

President Roosevelt was convinced by certain advisers that it would be good politics to publish a blast against wealth at this particular time He did so saying nothing at the time about rushing a new revenue law embodying his ideas through congress during the current session The blunder started at that point

The radicals he hoped to appease saw an opportunity to turn the heat on him in a political sense They clamored for immediate action Mr Roosevelt having taken one step thereupon decided to take another one When Democratic leaders called on him for instructions at the White House they came away saying they would try to crowd the new revenue law through congress in less than a week by making it a rider on the bill continuing the federal gasoline tax

President Roosevelt by remaining silent while this strategy went forward tacitly gave it the approval he undoubtedly had given to it previously in the form of instructions to Democratic leaders Only when the first shouts of protest reached Washington did he declare himself publicly and then his statement was to the effect that he was surprised to discover the country believed he wanted immediate action

The Democratic leaders who were left holding the bag had nothing to say about President Roosevelt's unexpected about face It is part of their job to shield him from criticism He is the head of the party In this case however circumstances have prevented them from being whipping boys The public regards them as victims of political chicanery not as men responsible for it

The obvious inferences which the public has made are these

President Roosevelt overplayed his executive hand in an attempt to curry favor with certain critics who were urging him to do things their way in order to get their political support He attempted to exercise a form of power far from democratic by rushing congress into immediate action on a measure which merited examination and debate He ignored the Constitution by attempting to originate a revenue measure in the senate instead of the house When the move failed he blandly disclaimed any intention of wrong doing

His were the actions of a man frightened by political threats first on one side then on the other They were the actions of a man alarmingly sensitive to the pressure which compact political minorities do not hesitate to apply and which must be resisted in order to preserve representative government All in all it was a merry demonstration

Added To The Prospect.

The crowd likes to believe the underdog has a chance That explains why Italy's preparations to destroy the sovereignty of Ethiopia are not inspiring many cheers why Ethiopia's activities are being watched sympathetically and why Premier Mussolini is commonly believed to be engaged in a perilous undertaking

Italy may be able to conquer Ethiopia On the face of it the well trained and modernly equipped Italian army should win without effort But upsets are always possible and there is no doubt that a strong hope for an upset in Ethiopia's favor exists The underdog's sympathizers are numerous

Added to the prospect of the undertaking is the possibility of a general Moslem uprising if Italy declares war Rumors of a religious war have been verified by Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia The emperor points out that Mohammed declared in the Koran the Moslem bible The Ethiopians having given me their hospitality all Mohammedans must aid the Ethiopians if they encounter difficulties

That is obviously a remote possibility but nevertheless a possibility Christian Ethiopia enjoys good relations with Moslems in adjoining regions No one can say definitely that Italy is in no danger of arousing a fanatical religious war Neither can any one [illegible] definitely that Italy is in no danger [illegible] protectorate over Ethiopia [illegible] of weakening its [illegible] in F[illegible] and Africa

Apparently Premier Mussolini has weighed all [illegible] and found them not great enough [illegible] Ethiopia He has chosen to be a fighting man in a [illegible] has become accustomed to think [illegible] aggressive action [illegible] general [illegible] may have to deal with Italy [illegible] Italy makes a [illegible] Africa [illegible] the [illegible] It never has been the [illegible] to [illegible] possibilities

Broadening the Base

A country cannot rely on the wealthy men to carry the major part of the tax burden [illegible] In 19[illegible] when the income tax was [illegible] 60 per cent of all the federal [illegible] revenue that [illegible] in the United States In 1934 the proportion still was 31 per cent [illegible] a great increase in the number of taxable incomes

Current discussion of taxes on wealth which would entail an increase in income tax rates [illegible] the possibility of an [illegible] of the tax base though that is not officially one of the purposes of [illegible] It is difficult to understand [illegible] the trend toward a broader base can be [illegible]

The proposed new schedules are accompanied by estimates of a probable annual yield of $340 000 000 which is composed of $100 000 000 from increased corporation taxes $40 000 000 for the inheritance tax and $100 000 000 for individual surtaxes The last two classifications are subject to immediate challenge Both are too high

In other words the stiffest rates the government has proposed amounting almost to outright confiscation in some classifications would not produce more than a third of a billion dollars according to liberal estimates After the rich had been soaked there still would be need for more revenue to finance the ordinary and emergency expenditures of the government and to amortize the enormous national debt

The United States has not touched yet the middle and lower groups of incomes In Great Britain which does not regard income and estate taxes as class taxes but as revenue producers a married man without dependents may have to pay an income tax of as much as $157 before his income is taxable at all in the United States By the time an American is paying $8 tax on his income an Englishman is paying $217

This government's narrow income tax base is not consistent with its rate of expenditure Americans have been fascinated by the idea that the creed of ability to pay will exempt all moderate and small incomes but the days of that creed's usefulness are numbered Little incomes will be next

Always Painful

One fact about budget cutting can't be repeated too often while Ohio is trying to decide whether or not Gov Davey went too far in cutting certain appropriations Economy is always painful

Department heads never volunteer to decrease appropriations Being men interested in their work in their jobs and in their fellowmen they forge on relentlessly toward the distant goals they have set for themselves They never reach the goals of course because the latter always are receding

It follows as a matter of course that every dollar of expenditure can be justified It represents some service for taxpayers a service which taxpayers will not do without That's usually a safe assumption because taxpayers who can do without the service almost invariably remain silent The ones who have something to sell do all the talking

Therefore economy is always painful The normal course of governmental spending is upward simply because attempts to change it to downward don't seem worth the effort Regardless of Gov Davey's intentions regardless of his wisdom he has swung the economy ax Each stroke has been followed by a scream of rage and pain Ohio is hesitating The victims of the budget cutting lie moaning on the ground They are wounded in spirit as well as in body By remembering that it never has been otherwise Ohio may be able to arrive at some kind of a sane decision on Gov Davey's unexpected policy It's not a time to be squeamish

Neighborhood History

HOMEMADE MEAL

A cornmeal grater homemade was the first aid in getting a meal in the home of a pioneer woman of Crawford county The grater was made by taking one side of an old tin bucket punching small holes in it together all over it and nailing it on a board in such a manner that the middle curved upward two or three inches from the board

Meal could be made by industriously rubbing ears of corn along its surface and this had to be done until sufficient meal was obtained to furnish food for supper and breakfast next morning

It was not unusual to hear a mother say to her youngsters Here children take this basket and go into the cornpatch and bring in [illegible] to grate for supper and breakfast

Behind The News In

Washington And Wall Street

BY PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON July 1 — The man behind the scenes in the treasury is Herman Oliphant general counsel to Secretary Morgenthau He attended a dinner given a few nights ago by a leader of capital society where the guests plagued him with amazed expression about the new program to tax bigness

Owlish Mr Oliphant replied in a knowing tone

You ain't seen nothin yet

Mr Oliphant does not talk loosely and usually knows whereof he speaks Not from this significant incident alone but from similar hints dropped by other officials the conclusion is obvious that President Roosevelt's somewhat sensational move is not the last one he contemplates in that direction

Somethin

What the new dealers apparently have in the back of their heads are further stronger steps in a long range venture to eliminate bigness not only among men but corporation

If you get them off in a corner they will concede the revenue raising features of the proposed plan were almost inconsequential or at least secondary that the wealth sharing claims made for it were largely political ballyhoo What they really wanted they whisper was to establish a tax basis for a social policy to be adjusted and readjusted in coming years until all the big ones are made over into little ones They did not dare to go any farther for a starter

Now some of this talk may be an excuse for the deficiency of the program Some of it may be designed to hearten the doubting wealth sharers like Huey

But make no mistake about it there are many new dealers supercharged with the Brandeis Frankfurter philosophy sincerely and non politically apparently including one in the White House

Confiscation

Tax students now are just about agreed that the proposed tax increases on large corporations will probably not drive them out of business or break them up

You can see just how hard it will hit three of the largest corporations in the country by the following table

A T and T—
[illegible] Tax New Prop Tax
$1 [illegible] $17 [illegible] $ 3 36 000
General Motors—
[illegible] 11 401 00[illegible]
Standard Oil (N J)—
[illegible] 10 000

These figures suggest that the new taxes will sharply curtail dividends but are not necessarily confiscatory The increase per share of General Motors stock would be roughly 4½ cents A T and T 25 cents

Steps

To give you an idea how easy it would be for the administration to take further steps The privilege of filing consolidated returns is an important as[illegible] Under this privilege the profits of one subsidiary may be offset by the losses of another for the purposes of taxation

The treasury has placed a [illegible] on the use of the consolidated return and it is not much of a help to a middle sized firm but it [illegible] big fellows very much

Another thing which Mr R[illegible] in his message was a tax on dividends collected by corporations By such a tax all holding companies could be ruined

Comlet Eyes

Batting Averages

[illegible] of more than [illegible] is that the supreme court has declared unconstitutional [illegible] laws out of 24 016 passed in the history of the country The 60 [illegible] the NRA

In the same period 1789 to 1934 Presidents have vetoed 850 bills Congress has overridden 48 of these vetoes

From this you can see the three branches of government usually get along amicably

Notes

The Bible of [illegible] thought on large corporations is supposed to be contained in The Modern Corporation and Private Property by two brain trusters Gardner Harding and Adolph Berle

The unofficial new tax program [illegible] by Senator Harrison would raise $340 000 000 yearly This would be $2.80 per person on a wealth sharing basis

The talk around the White House now is that Mr Roosevelt will have to delay his San Diego trip because congress will keep him here for all of July and he has engagements through August He is supposed to be planning a two weeks rest at Campobello around Labor day

BY JAMES McMULLIN

NEW YORK July 1 President Roosevelt won't find it an cinch to drive through his tax plan in a form which will affect only the wealthy The conservative opposition—realizing that their case has no political appeal—will make a powerful effort to broaden the base of the new taxes to take in everyone who makes over $10 000 a year New York insiders figure there is a good chance of putting this over

The object will be to make the new taxes as unpopular as possible so they won't be too darned permanent If they are confined to the super rich it would be very hard to get them repealed The more pocketbooks are squeezed the more agitation there will be to have the imposts removed as soon as possible Of course even those with incomes from $10 000 up are a small minority of the population—but the group includes most business and professional leaders and wields an influence far beyond its numbers

Votes

Reports that Mr Roosevelt will veto the holding company bill unless it contains the death sentence seem to contradict the contention that he has been willing to have the back teeth pulled if the front teeth are left nice and shiny

The contradiction is more apparent than real The best informed sources say that the President was ready to accept modification—until the utilities got hard boiled and decided the bill must be slaughtered instead of merely softened That has been their real objective in recent weeks whereas earlier they would have been content with a compromise [illegible] had the President [illegible]—and why take a half loaf when [illegible] a whole one [illegible]

The trouble is that two can play this game If [illegible] people don't are [illegible] be reasonable [illegible] does the White House [illegible]

[illegible]

Spending

[illegible]

[illegible] tax—[illegible]

[illegible]ciple—led to much larger corporate outlays More people were hired salaries were raised advertising appropriations enlarged research work expended—anything to keep profits in bounds Most corporate managements would rather spend freely for almost any purpose than hand over extra dough to Uncle Sam It makes them feel that at least they have some say about what is done with their companies' money There's no room for executive initiative in shelling out to the treasury

This doesn't necessarily imply a vigorous employment boom if the corporate tax proposals go through But it does suggest that there is an interest of pressure for expanding employment back of the Roosevelt drive

G O P

Backstagers in the metropolis are getting a bit annoyed at Republican house leader Bertrand H Snell They criticize him on two counts One is that he takes a strictly factional view of every issue that comes up and doesn't pay enough attention to popular reactions The other is that he doesn't maintain proper party discipline The boys are always wandering off the reservation and supporting new deal measures

He can't very well be superseded now—but important Republican circles are engaged in a still hunt for some one who can do a more efficient job of leading when the fighting gets important from a party standpoint At present it doesn't matter much—with so many Democratic snipers pot shotting at the White House

Cutthroat

The copper industry is having a terrific time trying to police itself without a code Theoretically most of the companies want an agreement to prevent chiselling—but old habits will be difficult to break Few industries have played cutthroat so assiduously Insiders look for a further decline in copper prices

Biggest

Speaking of taxes New York sharps comment that the biggest tax bill ever enacted went through with hardly a ripple of protest They figure the social security bill—as it stands—will eventually cost business something like three billion dollars a year But large industry paid little attention to this measure—focussing its fire on more obvious menaces

Manipulation

Most issuers of bonds want to see them strong in the market Not so the farm credit administration It would like to invest its surplus funds in its own securities and can't as long as they remain above par Wall Street cracks that the agency ought to hire some one like Ben Smith—former big time trader —to initiate it in the mysteries of bear market manipulation

Thurn Talks on Fruit rving, Other Topics

[illegible] ... long ago ... recipe ... berries ... berries ...

Use three fourths pound of sugar to every pound of berries. Put sugar in a preserving kettle, dissolve and let heat but not to boiling. Add the berries and bring to boiling and let boil for five minutes. Remove from the fire and spread on shallow platters and place in hot sunshine until the syrup thickens. As a rule it takes from two to three days, time varying according to the heat of the sun and how long it stays up. Between days keep the platters indoors in a clean dry place. When the syrup has reached the desired thickness (not enough to become jellied) pack in freshly sterilized (but cold) jars and cover with hot paraffin.

Rhubarb and Fig Jam

Five pounds rhubarb, one pound cut up dried figs, four pounds sugar. Wash the figs, soak two hours, then cut in fine pieces by putting through the meat grinder. Cut the rhubarb in small pieces. Add the figs and sugar to the water in which the figs have soaked. Boil for one hour or until very thick. Put into sterilized jars, seal or cover with paraffin.

Orange and Rhubarb Marmalade

Three pounds sliced rhubarb, three pounds sliced oranges, two lemons, three pounds sugar.

Chop up the peel of the orange and lemon. Add the peel to the finely chopped fruit and sugar and let stand over night. Put into a large enameled saucepan and cook slowly to a jelly. Pour into glasses and seal with paraffin.

Cherry Preserves

Allow one pound of sugar for each pound of seeded cherries and three tablespoons of currant juice. Put a layer of cherries in the bottom of the enameled preserving kettle, then a layer of sugar, repeat until the kettle is three fourths full. Pour in currant juice to every pound of fruit and sugar. Put in the kettle over low heat, let boil, shaking the kettle to keep the cherries from sticking. Remove the scum as it rises. Cook until the syrup is very thick. Pour into sterilized glass jars and when cool seal tight.

Iron Skillets

One woman at the Cooking School asked: What makes an iron skillet turn things black that are fried in it?

My suggestion is to thoroughly clean the skillet first by wiping out with paper [illegible] then by washing it in very hot soap suds, then by rinsing in clear hot water. While in the suds scour with a brush or steel wool scouring brush, rinse carefully and wipe with a clean dish towel. An iron skillet which is carefully cleaned after each use is as clean as any other utensil and black does not come off on food.

Underweight Child

One question concerned the underweight child, what to do about his food. First see the family doctor. The child may have bad teeth or bad tonsils or some other functional or organic sickness which causes him to dislike food or which cause his food to be improperly assimilated. If the doctor and dentist give him a clean bill of health and say He needs building food, then see that he gets a quart of milk each day—when it is possible the raw certified variety. Try giving him egg malted milk between meals, rice, spaghetti and tapioca as luncheon dishes, cereals with every breakfast, cream soups once a day, plenty of butter on his bread and have it real butter, not a substitute. Make cocoa for his breakfast and if he cannot take the egg drinks give him iced cocoa with cream or rich milk between meals. Milk drinks sweetened with a little vanilla are often more appreciated by a child who is fussy about his food.

Another Child

What would you feed a child that won't eat any vegetables and wants everything sweet? Try to reason with him nicely before meal time, explaining that vegetables give him a straight fine body, good bones, energy to run and play, a chance to be on the football team when he grows up, and that too many sweets and too much sweet food will make him ill and keep him from these good times. Then present his vegetables attractively, his [illegible] nice little dishes, the food well seasoned and served in small portions. Promise as a treat after the vegetables that there will be a pudding or some other simple sweet. If he still refuses then you must assert your position by saying there will be no sweets or no food at all until you can eat vegetables with the rest of the family. He may go on hunger strike but it will last only a day at most. And such asserting of authority has to be done or he remains not only the badly nourished child but his triumph over parental guidance will make him an insufferable child with whom to live.

STRAWBERRY JAM TIME IS HERE!

Put up summer berries with modern easy never fail methods. Recipe given below for strawberry jam. Other recipes in special article on this page.

Seven cups (three pounds) sugar, four cups (two pounds) crushed strawberries, one half cup fruit pectin.

Measure sugar and crushed fruit into large enameled kettle, mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard one minute. Remove from fire and stir in fruit pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for just five minutes to cool slightly to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Pour paraffin on the hot jam at once. Makes about ten eight ounce glasses.

SYNOPSIS

The unexpected return to London of Rex Moore, the airman supposed lost in the [illegible] has exposed the [illegible] of Laurie Moore [illegible] sister [illegible] still [illegible] Mark Albery [illegible] [illegible] like [illegible] Rex and Laurie [illegible] married to Rex to hold his job.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

Moving In

A PORTER brought Laurie's bags up in the elevator to the third floor. As she opened the front door with her key a panic seized her.

Was Rex here?

No. He had dressed and gone out. She was rather late. Her friends at the office had kept her talking, congratulating her on her husband's miraculous return. She had smiled and thanked them. How often in the last 24 hours she had with a driven fatalism burned her boats behind her.

Her husband. It was a joke of course. It was a very humorous situation. But it did not seem a bit like one now that she was alone in the flat and would be alone until Rex Moore came back.

How could she have been so crazy as to consent to this impossible position? Where was her pride, her independence, her self respect? She went over all the argument toilsomely as she put a kettle on to boil on the electric stove and made pretense of getting herself some supper.

She owed it to him. She had stolen his name, she had lived on it for two years. So had Glad through her. It was the least she could do to pretend to be his wife for a little while.

She drank her tea but could not eat anything.

She went into her bedroom and unpacked. It was an austere apartment in dull blues, with a large built in walnut wardrobe and a man's high dressing table. All polished wood and plain coverings. No feminine touch. Her rose colored dressing gown looked almost indecent, she thought with a twisted smile.

She looked into Rex Moore's bedroom opposite at the other end of the flat. It was intended for a man servant. Very comfortable too but plainer than hers.

He seemed to have no luggage but the suitcase she had seen in the train. His day clothes were neatly piled on a chair.

Could it be possible that she was going to share this flat with that man of the train? She was filled with a fierce hatred of him again. He was cruel, inhuman, a monster. He must have been able to fix some other way than this.

She went out for a stiff walk for an hour and could hardly bring herself to go back. When she did she fetched her sewing into the living room.

It was a little before 11 when Rex Moore came in and saw Laurie's chestnut head bent over the shimmering sky blue material of Glad's evening frock, a patch of color that invoked joyously, fantastic in the severe brown room.

Every light was on in the flat which he noticed at once.

Good evening. Afraid of being alone in the flat? he asked. Why didn't you keep the woman?

I'm not afraid. She raised her head and gave him a startled glance. He looked so different in evening dress, so much more sophisticated. She hadn't noticed it last night at Mark Albery's. She had been too confused to notice anything, too busy fighting to keep her composure, to appear natural, to say the proper thing.

Everything went fine, he told her. It won't take long to fix things up. Albery is keen on my trying the Pacific again. So am I. When you've crashed badly it's no good funking the same trip. It's a secret, mind. Even from you. Would you like a drink?

No thanks. Laurie was quite cool now.

Mind if I have one? A toast to our new home.

He laughed, but not mockingly. He was evidently very pleased with his evening.

He thought only of himself, the girl told herself.

Tomorrow night we'll go out to dinner and a show if you like, he went on. You mustn't be bored. And we shall have to have a few people here. I hope this woman can cook. There are some men in my own job and I met a man today who was very decent to me in America. We must keep the game up. But most evenings I shall be working.

It does not interest me in the slightest what you will be doing, Mr Moore, Laurie said.

By the way, Albery tells me you are going to do his personal correspondence again. There was a new note in his voice.

Yes. His private secretary has to go away again for three months. He was kind enough to say that I did the work all right.

He's very keen on you, isn't he?

What do you mean?

What I say. I saw it last night and the way he talks about you. He doesn't know he's giving himself away. He has an idea he's a regular Sphinx. I suppose you've been about with him a bit out of office hours?

How dare you say such things? I've never been anywhere with Mr Albery. I hardly know him. He has only been kind to me—because of you. Her eyes shot blue lightnings at him.

I see. Sorry I spoke. Of course it's nothing to do with me. You must be a difficult person to get on with. You seem to have such a temper.

Laurie was on her feet, gathering her needlework together.

They glared at each other across the table. Her eyes fell first.

It's time you went to bed, he said in a detached voice.

* * *

It was the climax of this impossible situation.

Panic seized her again. She cast a look of terror at him. It was the same unreasoning fear of being in the room with him. Just as she had felt in her own little home that there was not space for the two of them.

She tried to hurry past him out of the room but his voice held her.

You can't be afraid of me? Surely it's not that? Why do you look so queer?

I'm not afraid of you. But you're a brute.

He looked at her uncomprehendingly. There was no pretence about it.

I don't understand you. Haven't we made a bargain?

She forced herself to face him boldly.

Mr Moore, I can't stand it. It's too impossible, too crazy. Shut up here alone with you, a perfect stranger. I can't go on. You must find some way to end it at once.

But what's happened since you agreed, since you took it on? You knew what you were doing. Now for goodness sake go and get a good night's rest and you'll feel quite different in the morning.

She was shaking so that she could hardly stand. Her sound balanced self, the side of her that had fought through tragedy into safety, was in abeyance. She was all quivering nerves. Again she tried to pass him. If he saw that she was crying she would die of shame.

His face changed to hardness again, his angry mouth smiled in ridicule.

You are afraid of me? he said with rough impatience, hiding some deep hurt that did not reach her ears. You think I have got you here and am going to make love to you. You little fool, do you think I've got any room for women in my life? Good night. If you're the girl I took you for you'll play the game.

* * *

Laurie woke with a bewildered start as people do who find themselves in a strange bed in a strange room.

She jumped up and remembered, and started the day with a bad burst of anger against herself, against Rex, more against life in general.

She had no [illegible] to begin with. She would have to rush or she would be late for the office.

She had made a fool of herself last night in that ridiculous fit of nerves. She was angrier than ever with Rex Moore because he had thought she was afraid of him.

As she dressed, skipping a bath in her hurry, the sensible side of her took the upper hand. He had been hateful to her and she was going to punish him. But she must keep her temper. She had got to live her own life. And she had now been given this wonderful chance by Mr Albery. This ridiculous game was only for a short time but being Mr Albery's personal secretary might mean a career.

3 Teams Hold Sole Claim To Top in Softball Leagues

NEW RECORD SET AS 23 LOOP GAMES WERE RUN OFF LAST WEEK

Special Celebration Planned for Wednesday Night at Lincoln Park

Leads in three out of four of the city softball leagues were claimed by one team at the close of last week's play after a record of twenty-three games were played in the first week of good weather since the [illegible] got under way. This is a record number of tilts to be run off in a five-day program.

Holding tightly onto first places are the Presbyterian team in the No. 1 Sunday School League, the Silk Mill nine in the Industrial loop and Erie Traffic in the Commercial League circuit. Three teams, Epworth Bishops, Forest Lawn and Oakland, are tied for first place in the No. 2 church league. Each league leader claims a one-game margin over the runners up.

Special Event Wednesday

Although eight postponed games were cleared from the list last week, 18 contests are still among the delayed. The list includes two deadlocked tilts and the K. of P.-Elks game postponed in the second half series Friday night. With July 4 taking away one day from this week's schedule only one postponed game is scheduled for the week.

The Gasco-Silk Mill game postponed three times since June 6 has been scheduled for the Friday night nocturnal attraction at Lincoln park. The other night game this week will bring together the Walters Dishonnett and Marion Steam Shovel teams under the lights Wednesday night. An exhibition of fireworks has been purchased by the city softball commission for the Wednesday night event.

Notable among changes in standings during the last half of the first round were the slump of such teams as United Brethren, First Reformed and the Westinghouse Cubs and the climb of the Epworth Bishops and St. Mary No. 1 teams. The losers have experienced considerable hard luck in recent games while the winners have shown improved playing.

Poorer Playing

Errors caused largely by postponement of games and practice sessions early this season continue to mar the playing of nearly every team. Competition is just about as keen as it has been in recent years but not quite the same brand of ball is being played.

Poor weather and poor playing have made heavy inroads into the interest in Marion's leading summer amateur sport. Competition, it is expected, will grow hotter as the season progresses increasing the fans interest in the sport.

Many fans and players are blaming the lack of interest on several 'mismatched' teams found in late week circuits. Considerable talk is being heard of organizing six club leagues for the Industrial, Commercial and possibly a lodge circuit. This is expected to be one of the major problems of the city softball commission next spring.

League leaders in the No. 2 church league should maintain their position tonight unless some of the lower place nines rise up and strike down a leader. The Epworth Bishop-U. B. game at Garfield and the Forest Lawn-Christian tilt at Lincoln look like the best games for this evening.

Fast Tilts for Friday

Trinity and Calvary will put on a hot battle Tuesday night at Steam Shovel field, while First Reformed will attempt to gain a tie with Lee Street at Lincoln. The night game appears to be the best game scheduled in the Wednesday series.

What promise to be sizzling contests are on the docket for the Friday night program. First place in the Commercial League may be at stake at President field when the Pleasant Lutheran A. C. and Erie Traffic club meet in a twilight game. A victory for Pleasant will tie the teams. The K. of P. and Westinghouse Cubs will stage a fast battle at Steam Shovel field and the Elks and Saratoga Grill teams will cross bats at Lincoln.

To climax the day's program the Gasco and Silk Mill aggregations will attempt to settle their dispute under the lights at Lincoln park. This game has been delayed three times by bad weather and the two teams are just rarin' to play this week.

MARION TEAM DROPS 12-INNING BATTLE

Ritz Grill Nine Loses at Little Sandusky

2 to 1

The Marion Ritz Grill team dropped a 12-inning thriller at Little Sandusky Sunday afternoon 2 to 1. The home team won the ball game in the 12th inning when Leichter was safe on an error and came home on Pell's heavy triple to centerfield. Anderson scored in the second inning as three singles were poled out.

GIANTS KEEP WINNING AS REDS DOWN CARDS THIRD STRAIGHT TIME

Freitas Outpitches Dizzy Dean, Indians Split as Yanks Lose in 12 Innings

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

[illegible] New York Giants have [illegible] position in the National League pennant race that is [illegible] [illegible] spots of centerfield [illegible] bright green [illegible].

With [illegible] approaching, the Giants have built their lead up to [illegible] games and [illegible] the challenges of their leading rivals in the last couple of weeks [illegible] back and [illegible] the other [illegible] knock one another off with considerable regularity. In contrast the first three American League clubs are grouped in a space of 2½ games.

Reds Take Third

While the Giants were taking [illegible] from the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday, 7 to 4 and 5 to 1, Pittsburgh's Pirates climbed into second place pushing Chicago down to third and the World Champion Cardinals to fourth.

The Giants got the benefit of a [illegible] four Brooklyn pitchers in the opener and of six hit flinging by Hal Schumacher [illegible] won his ninth straight game in the afternoon. Mel Ott helped by [illegible] a homer in each game to bring his season's total to 16. The Pirates, held to one run in three previous games, slammed out a 9 to 7 victory over the Cubs with another 17-hit attack.

The great Dizzy Dean was thoroughly outpitched by little Tony Freitas of Cincinnati, who gave the Cards only four hits as the Reds beat them for the third straight time 5 to 2.

Both Cleveland and Detroit [illegible] into the Yankees' American League lead, the Tigers going on a hitting rampage to make the biggest inroads with a double victory over St. Louis. The scores were 18 to 1 and 11 to 6 as the Tigers made 19 hits in each game. The Indians split a doubleheader with the White Sox, winning 3 to 2 behind Monte Pearson's six hit flinging, then taking an 8 to 0 shutout. Vernon Kennedy gave only seven blows while the Hose hammered Mel Harder into submission to end his latest winning streak.

Yanks Protest

The even break helped however as the Yankees bowed to Washington 8 to 7 in a 12-inning struggle after tying the score with four runs in the sixth and again with two in the ninth. The Yanks finished under protest of a ruling in the ninth when Washington went ahead.

Philadelphia and Boston fought it out with little to choose between their representatives. With Dutch Brandt pitching the Braves took the opener of a double bill from the Phillies 9 to 3, aided by Wally Berger's 16th boundary belt, but the Phils replied with a 23-hit barrage to win 15 to 5.

The Athletics finally edged out the Red Sox 10 to 9, scoring two runs on four straight singles in the ninth after Boston had blasted out four runs to take the lead in the first half of the inning.

BLACK RUST REPORTS BOOST GRAIN PRICES

Damaging Effect To Wheat in Nebraska and Kansas Spurs Chicago Trade

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO July 1 — Reports that black rust in Nebraska has become the heaviest and most widespread such epidemic witnessed in any winter wheat state for 15 years led to steep new jumps of grain prices today

Trading was on a big scale Indications pointed also to black rust damage to winter wheat in parts of Kansas with rust already present in South Dakota spring wheat

Rotten to the Core.

Perhaps refusal to give opposition the benefit of a doubt is an essential policy in crusading. Otherwise, the crusader might turn soft and start pulling his punches in deference to a foe who really wasn't such a complete villain after all.

President Roosevelt has made it known there will be no silly sentimentality between himself and corporations giving gifts to private charity. Let softies talk about permitting deductions up to 5 per cent of net income of charitable contributions, to encourage corporate gifts to charity, but he will have none of it. Apparently, administration leaders in congress are ready to echo his refusal.

Mr. Roosevelt says corporations contribute to charity to build good will. What kind of a crusader would he be if he let the heathen build up good will right under his nose? No sir, he would rather not touch their tainted money at all.

Unfortunately, private charities, intensely interested right now in the federal government's muddled attempt to give back to them some of the burden of relief it accepted so blithely once upon a time, can't see it that way. It's hard for them to believe all corporations are rotten to the core, mainly because corporate gifts have recently provided about a fourth of all funds raised in the United States for community chests. They've an idea that exempting charitable gifts from federal taxation might encourage even more generous giving—a sharing of wealth without tax collectors and politicians as intermediaries. But they aren't crusaders, at least not of Mr. Roosevelt's eminence. It would be an admission of weakness for him to let a corporation give anything away before government had a chance to confiscate it.

Unmentionables.

Italy plainly does not intend to let Ethiopia choose the subjects for conversation in the forthcoming meeting of the League of Nations council at Geneva. Premier Mussolini knows Emperor Haile Selassie would like to talk about boundary lines, for instance, and boundary lines is one of the conversational unmentionables right now.

Actually, the whole dispute between Italy and Ethiopia, however complex it may seem, turns factually on the exact location of the boundary between Somaliland and Ethiopia, where Italian colonial soldiers and Ethiopian soldiers engaged in battle last December. Italy claims Ethiopia was trespassing. It happens that a map published in 1923 "under the auspices" of the Italian ministry of colonies shows the incident occurred in Ethiopian territory.

It would be foolishly naive to believe Italy would take a different attitude toward Ethiopia if the "incident" which has caused it to concentrate troops in Italian Somaliland were to be denounced as unworthy by the League of Nations, yet Premier Mussolini is naturally anxious to keep everything as regular as possible. So far, Italy has been able to get its way with the League of Nations and there is no reason to believe Ethiopia will be able to upset the diplomatic preparation for its invasion any better than it promises to upset the military preparations. Nothing is impossible, but firm and resolute action by the League of Nations, favoring neither one side or the other, is so close to impossible that no one expects it to happen.

International Crime Preserve.

Announcement that the United States will deport alien convicts for economy purposes is a reminder that no fatted calves will be killed for the errant prodigals when they are shipped home. They will be, in fact, as unpopular in their native lands as they are in the land they have adopted.

What the world needs most, next to a sound 5 per cent investment, is an international crime preserve where all nations could send undesirable aliens. Something about the size of the island of Madagascar would be excellent.

The preserve could be established out of an international fund, and once established it would be made to support itself. For instance, the first 2000 crooks set ashore would be told they could do one of two things—escape or figure out a way to maintain themselves. Of course, they would escape as rapidly as they could hire accommodations and before long they would be back in their old haunts again, robbing, peddling drugs and performing an occasional murder. By the way, that's probably what is going to happen to most of the alien convicts the United States is preparing to deport. Having lived in the land of opportunity, it's unthinkable they would stay away from it any longer than necessary. It will be nice, though, to be let out of jail, taken for a boat ride and treated like persons of importance.

Extended to Sept. 15.

Maintenance of peaceful working conditions in the soft coal industry has been made to seem dependent on passage of the Guffey-Snyder coal bill. Friends of that controversial measure have performed a skillful maneuver.

John L. Lewis, president of United Mine Workers, has complied with President Roosevelt's request for a continuation of the truce which his organization has maintained in the soft coal industry. Mr. Lewis, it is fair to suppose, is pleased with the opportunity to trade a few more weeks of peace for the chance of getting the Guffey-Snyder bill.

It is the bill whose enactment has been urged by the administration against whatever reasonable doubts congressmen may have in regard to its constitutionality. The threat of a coal strike is a heavy club to hold over congress. Few congressmen are able to see how they can keep it from falling unless United Mine Workers can be persuaded to take it away.

The Guffey-Snyder bill, according to Mr. Lewis, is the only formula offered from any source to cure the industry's ills. His assumption that these ills are curable is debatable. More debatable yet is his assumption that the Guffey-Snyder bill, a miniature recovery act, and Wagner labor disputes bill combined, would be an effective remedy. Yet, because no other remedy has been offered, it has been made a question of using a questionable remedy or of making it necessary for Mr. Lewis to carry out his threat of a strike. Some time before Sept. 16, when the latest extension of the truce expires, congress must get out of its dilemma on this vital question.

The Other Cheek.

The California synod of the Presbyterian church gets the medal for the simplest scheme to make highways safe for motorists.

"Whoever else may drive in disregard of the rights of safety of other people," the synod has resolved, "let us at least not do so, but observe upon the highway the courtesy and grace which becomes Christians."

The idea is simple as pie, but almost revolutionary. It is recalled that the depression and the armament problem both could be made to disappear instantly by application of Christian principles. Strangely, the thing seems too simple to be practical.

In driving, it would mean that no one ever would curse the driver who failed to apply himself diligently to making a quick getaway at a traffic light. When blinded by the lights of an approaching car, the Christian driver would dim his own lights in kindly consideration.

There would be no crowding on turns, no passing on hills, no fighting for parking places, no jockeying for the front row at intersections, no passing at high speed, no slow-poking on roads crowded with Sunday traffic. There would be, in short, nothing but perfection.

It's idealistic. Universal application of Christian principles would bring the millennium. But when someone wrinkled the front fender, it would be a bit difficult to smile and turn the other fender. The trouble is, evidently, there aren't enough real Christians to advertise the benefits of applying Christian principles to the operation of automobiles.

DEATH OF "BUCKWHEAT"

A site along the bank of the river opposite the village of Little Sandusky in Wyandot county, was the scene of the burning of Buckwheat, a member of the Delaware tribe. Tried and found guilty of witchcraft he was sentenced to be burned alive by members of his own tribe in 1827.

From an account given by Major Anthony Bowsher, the founder of Bowsherville, who witnessed the burning, Buckwheat was first made so drunk with whisky he was unable to stand, then bound and placed upon a blazing fire of brush and wood. To insure his remaining there a long, heavy piece of green timber was placed upon his body and held in place by Indians sitting upon both ends of it.

Whisky, passed around by an old squaw, fired the Indians to a frenzy and they circled and [illegible] around their victim, singing and [illegible]. The orgy kept up for two days and nights.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, July 30—New York notables are not always to be seen in the fancy or exclusive restaurants. There are of course the opulent strivers who fill much space in the social chit-chat columns and are classed as "cafe society." They are always in the tony spots.

But almost every celebrity has his private haunt—usually some plain and neat kitchened place off the traveled trails where the proprietor may do the cooking and his wife the serving. Where the service is leisurely but [illegible] for cuisine strong.

The Paul Whitemans are frequently diners at Ceniraffi's. Also Amelia Earhart. Earl Carroll favors a Chinese place, Chow Mein. Mrs. Raymond Hitchcock entertains in an Armenian cafe. The Roy Howards have a Japanese favorite in 57th street. Floyd Gibbons likes owl wagons for midnight snacks. Joe Cook, Chili Villa.

Leon Gordon makes parties at the Italian Del Pezzo up a rickety stair. The William Gaxtons are regulars at a Spanish spot in Sheridan Square. The Isaac Marcossons prefer a German kitchen in Yorkville. John Boettiger, the President's son-in-law, frequents a [illegible]-tabled place in rear of a French delicatessen.

A bleak desolation stagnates 5th avenue after 5 in the evening. Aside from the occasional night watch or chance straggler it is lifeless. For years it was the 8 to 11 promenade, a paradise for window shoppers. Today some stores do not light their windows, so scant is the parade. And the breathless architectural grandeur of Radio City has saved the avenue by day. It was slowly sinking when the Rockefellers threw the lifeline.

Now, strangely enough, in maturity they look like twins.

A full stop in Manhattan skyscrapers seems at hand. On the site of the old New York theater, one of Broadway's choicest corners, rises a two—count 'em two—story building. On the old Hammerstein theater site a modest structure goes up. Six years ago such sites would have out-empired the Empire State building itself. Not many buildings under construction are more than four stories, mostly two. This type, when finished, is quickly filled. Taxes are lower, and rent, too. Many believe there will not be another 30 story building this decade. Or the next.

Glancing Backward

TEN YEARS AGO.

It was Thursday, July 30, 1925.

Although the weather during July had been moderate in comparison with the intense heat of June, the month was on record as one of the hottest Julys in three years here. The highest mark registered at the office of Dr. E. H. Raffensperger, official weather observer, was 93 on July 6. For one whole week in June the mercury had ranged from 91 to 97.

County Farm Agent G. W. Timmons reported that Marion's wheat crop would be less than the preceding year.

Misses Grace Wingett, Rhea King, and Irenaea Kraus returned from a visit in Lexington and Louisville, Ky. They were accompanied home by Miss Helen King, who had been attending the summer session of the University of Kentucky.

Edwin Knachel of Herman street left for Miami, Fla., where he had accepted the position of efficiency manager with several theaters.

William E. Kinsler, 52, died at his home on Scioto street.

Miss Kathryn O'Keefe of Bellevue avenue, Miss Eloise Hoover of East George street, and Miss Alice Louise Monnette of north of Marion returned from a visit at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Goslyn in Tiffin.

Miss Genevieve Merkle entertained at bridge at the home of her aunt, Mrs. George Hinamon of Bain avenue, for the pleasure of Miss Elizabeth McVay of Athens, guest of Miss Ruth McMurray.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

It was Friday, July 30, 1915.

A sensation was caused in Paris by an article published in the Echo de Paris which called upon Russia to send men to fight with the Allies in the western theater of war.

Charles Becker, former New York police lieutenant convicted of hiring four gunmen to kill Herman Rosenthal, gambler, as Rosenthal prepared to expose a police alliance with the underworld, was electrocuted at Sing Sing. Becker went to his death proclaiming his innocence and in a message left to his faithful wife said, "I am sacrificed for my friends."

Behind The News In
Washington And Wall Street

BY PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 30—A conspiracy of nature appears to be fooling the economists. They thought this was going to be an unencouraging summer. Their only hope has been for fall.

But it seems that every time their pessimism is about to be realized, something unchartable and unexpected arises to offset their dreary calculations.

You can get the best idea about it if you will look behind what has happened lately in steel. Three weeks ago everyone was expecting a sharp slump. During the July 4 holiday week ingot operations were down to one-third of capacity. Nothing encouraging was in sight. Then, without advance notice, operations began to pick up until the rate got up to 45 per cent, and remained there. (It was only 40 per cent in June.)

The only explanation of this phenomenon was that fabricators underestimated their demand. They have been working very close to their margin on stock. Unexpected orders started them to work unseasonally.

The orders came from automobile makers, residential construction, machine tools, all somewhat unexpected.

Solution

The riddle may not be as hard to solve as economists believe. The fact is that the depression influence has been removed from the business mind. In its place has come an alert conservatism, a tendency to underestimate expectations, to keep stocks of goods to a narrow margin, an eagerness to go after business actively at first sign of demand, instead of remaining frozen in fearful restraint.

Chart

The figures on industrial production for the last four months show that this major index of activity has precisely followed normal seasonal fluctuations on a plane about 85 per cent of normal (1923-25). April, June and July were exactly 86 and May 85.

You can get the long trend from the following chart of government figures. Each figure represents the percentage of normal at the times stated. All figures except prices are based on 1923-25 average at 100; prices are based on 1926.

Production

Autos are now getting near the end of their run, but they have been holding up well. All figures from Detroit show activity and optimism in preparation for the start of new production in August. One notable factor is that this is the biggest year for trucks since 1929, indicating again that business itself is a buyer.

A steel trade publication recently carried a line that Henry Ford has sent out an inquiry for 90,000 to 140,000 tons of steel, the largest such inquiry in several years. (Incidentally, Ford will exceed his promise of a million cars this year.)

There is not much else to brag about in production. Textiles are mixed; tobacco strong; machinery strong.

NRA

The 7 per cent drop in pay rolls since May and a 4 per cent decrease in employment may be blamed partly, but certainly not entirely, on the breakup of the NRA codes.

In fact, some government economists doubt whether the codes had anything to do with it. They base their conclusion largely on the fact that figures on hourly rates of wages have shown no such decrease. Also the figures on production are not collected from the same industries as the figures on employment and pay rolls, which may account for some discrepancy.

In general the government authorities believe the larger industries have lived up to their promise to maintain code standards.

Incidentally, there is no indication that prices have been affected by breakdown of the codes. In fact, a slight increase has been noticed in the prices of finished products.

Residences

The better building contract figures are due to accelerated residential building, which is about double what it was a year ago. All privately financed residential work has expanded. There is very little PWA in the figures. All sections of the country show this encouraging increase.

BY JAMES McMULLIN

NEW YORK, July 30—John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers is up against a ticklish problem. There's no chance whatever for enactment of the Guffey coal bill by tomorrow night—though it will show progress and may even get through the house by then. So Lewis will either have to go through with the threatened strike or gamble on another postponement in the hope that the bill will pass shortly.

Each of the three previous delays has cost Lewis most of his prestige with his followers. In their eyes he appears to have been played for a sucker by the administration. Lewis realizes this, but has taken a chance on weakening his position in order to clinch the Guffey bill—which he figures will reestablish him as the leader who gets things done. But he can't stall too long or the direct actionists in his outfit are likely to take matters right out of his hands and strike anyway. If that happens his power is shot for keeps.

It's known that Lewis doesn't really want a strike. It might get out of hand and boomerang on him. New York sharps are betting he will risk playing with the administration once more and that his members won't rebel this time—though they will certainly grumble plenty. But if congress doesn't act on the Guffey bill P. D. Q. you can look for trouble with a capital T.

Doubt

Meanwhile the northern and southern coal operators are waging a hot battle of their own behind the Guffey bill screen.

The northerners are practically solid for the bill. The only important exception is Andy Mellon's Pittsburgh Coal—which formerly favored but now opposes a measure that might help cure a major New Deal headache. The southerners are united against it. Both sides advance plausible and ingenious arguments as to why the bill will—or won't—work.

Neither group publicly admits the existence of the real bone of fierce contention—the wage differential between sections which gives the southern mines a big competitive advantage. Both believe it would at least be sharply reduced under commission rule as provided by the Guffey bill. The north is determined that it shall be—the south that it shan't. Both are privately exerting every ounce of pressure they can muster on congress. The contest puts the fate of the bill in doubt even with the White House strongly behind it.

Lifted

The furore about allowing Ben Cohen and Dozier Devane to sit in at an executive session of house and senate conferees on the holding company bill had a couple of angles that escaped general attention.

Congressman George Huddleston's vehement objections were to be expected when you consider the Alabaman's record. He has been consistently sympathetic to the utilities—and from their slant the admission of Cohen and Devane to the meeting would have been like allowing one of two prizefighters to bring his seconds into the ring with him. The power people have been hopeful that conferees who favored their cause—even though lacking in real knowledge of the merits of the case—could after proper coaching outargue proponents of the bill—equally uninformed on fundamentals—and force them to back down. Apparently the administration also figured this might happen and was therefore anxious to have a couple of experts handy to keep the measure's supporters in conference on the track. Heretofore there have been no objections to presence of White House advisers at committee meetings.

But this time New Yorkers are convinced the White House forces pulled a boner. They say that with all the excitement about lobbying in the air whoever was responsible for Cohen's presence should have realized there was certain to be a resounding yawp from Huddleston and Cooper. Utility leaders are delighted and remark that the administration has lifted the curse off the lobbying inquiry more effectively than they could have done in a month of Sundays. For the first time they are definitely optimistic that the whole bill will be wrecked in conference and never reported out.

Decisive

Financial experts say there were signs last week that our treasury has again bailed a foreign nation out of hot water—Holland this time. During the crisis one New York bank was buying guilders with a free-handed confidence which indicated it was purchasing for government account—not for its own. Admittedly this isn't proof—but at least it's strong circumstantial evidence.

If the premise is correct the treasury has learned subtlety. There was no telltale increase of foreign bank deposits with the federal reserve. Nor is it likely that Secretary Morgenthau and the Dutch government will exchange bows in public. Governor Jean Tannery of the Bank of France undoubtedly appreciated Mr. Morgenthau's aid—but the gesture didn't exactly move the American congress and public to enthusiastic cheers.

Assault

The Bookkeepers, Stenographers and Accountants Union—affiliated with the Federation of Labor—is staging a new drive in New York to organize white collar workers.

The Office Workers Union—a more radical outfit—has stolen most of this group's thunder in the last year. Its activities have kept it in the headlines—but its membership hasn't grown much. Most of those who did join had already lost their jobs. Picketing of the curb exchange and the American Mercury were more picturesque than effective.

Now the federation organization feels the time is ripe to get back in the limelight. It's starting with a pushover—office workers in the otherwise thoroughly unionized garment industry. Success there will be followed by another assault on Wall Street.

Purchase

Charity trustees are genuinely crushed by Roosevelt's insistence that donations by corporations shall not be tax exempt. They figure the ensuing loss of about $20,000,000 a year sounds a death knell for private charities. They will continue to protest but are all too well aware that they have no political influence.

What they really want to know is what the heck the President calls the spending of relief money if not the purchase of political good will. And if it's reprehensible to spend a stockholder's money for charity without his consent what about letting the taxpayer select his beneficiaries too? The argument may not be cogent—but try to persuade them that it isn't.

St. Mary	3	8	.273
Salem	3	8	.273

Forest Lawn's softball team, trailing by a game and a half last week, jumped right back into the thick of the No. 2 Sunday School League yesterday afternoon, when it won its game from United Brethren, 5 to 0, while the Epworth Bishops were taking a 10 to 2 setback from the Central Christian team.

The reversal left the Bishops just a half game ahead of the Forest Lawn nine. The Bishops must win their game next week from Wesley M. E., while Forest Lawn has two games to play.

Central Christian, the surprise team of the last two weeks, climbed into the first division by virtue of its defeat of the Methodists. It was the third straight win for Paul Rice's team.

Wesley M. E. rose to tie for top position in the second division as it trounced Salem at Lincoln, 14 to 3. St. Mary and Salem, marked time in the cellar as the Irish lost to Oakland, 11 to 2 at Steam Shovel field.

Maynard Snyder, Forest Lawn pitcher, struck out 14 U. B. batsmen and allowed only three hits at the Garfield park exhibition. Keeping the blows in the family, C. Everly, outfielder, scored two of the three and R. Everly connected for the other. The winners were credited with six three-base hits and three doubles. Lefty Harper poled out a home run in the seventh inning with two runners on the sacks. He also garnered two of the triples. Snyder got three hits out of as many official trips to the plate.

Christian batsmen touched Primmor and Mautz for 12 blows, while Roscoe Rank allowed the losers but two hits. Russ Harold pounded out a home run, while Reed scored the only triple of the game.

Wesley had little trouble with Salem, hitting two pitchers almost at will. An eight-run spree in the fifth inning gave the winners a heavy margin after four innings of close playing.

Oakland had a shutout against the St. Mary team with one batsman retired in the last inning, but yielded two runs and as many hits. Dwight Ruby, Oakland hurler, connected for three hits in as many times at bat. He allowed the losers only six safeties.

Drawings Made for Softball Tourney; Winners in District Event.

Marion softball fans will get their first taste of tournament competition this week when the initial round of the annual Marion county championship play is held on city fields.

Decision to hold the first round of the tourney to pick an entrant in the district tournament was made last night by the softball commission officials. William N. Fabian, district commissioner for Ohio, is in charge of the event. Drawings were made last night at the Y. M. C. A. by Fabian and Elmer Shaw, secretary of the commission.

Semi-final and final rounds of the tourney will be held next week, if schedules can be arranged, it was announced. A coincident of the drawing was the pairing of Pleasant Lutherans and the Elks in a Group 2 game. As these two teams are scheduled to meet in a Commercial League tilt this week, outcome of the battle will have a double bearing. All regular Wednesday night games will be postponed.

Those having the task of pulling tickets for the brackets assured fans and players that the Pleasant-Elks pairing was absolutely on "the up and up." First division teams, prior to last night games in the No. 2 church league were selected to take part in the event. Teams were numbered and winners of first round-game will play in the order of their numbers. Group 1 will play Wednesday and Group 2 Friday and Saturday.

The drawings are:

A. A. ALL-STARS FACE MINNEAPOLIS TODAY

Newspaper Writers Select Team for Annual Association Classic.

By The Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS, July 30—The experts went on the spot today as the Minneapolis Millers faced the American Association All-Star team in an effort to duplicate their 1934 performance.

A year ago, the then league-leading Millers, trounced an All-Star team, picked by the fans, with a score of 13 to 6. This year the "experts"—sport writer of the Association cities—selected the players to oppose the loop pace setters.

This year's aggregation, they claim, is stronger than the outfit that bowed to Minneapolis in 1934, but Donie Bush, Miller manager, thinks his three top flingers, Ray Kolp Archie McKain and Bill Perrin, have what it take to close up the boys the sports writers insist are the best in the league.

The All-Stars' lineup was given a boost yesterday when Mike Powers, Toledo outfielder, played the entire game against Minneapolis. Earlier, it was feared Powers could not play since he suffered an injured wrist in batting practice Sunday.

T. J. Hickey, president of the American Association, said 7,000 fans were expected to witness the game, starting at 2:30 p. m. Central Standard time.

INDIANS OFF FLOOR FOR FIRST TIME IN 12 TILTS WITH TIGERS

Cleveland Scores 6 Runs in Sixth; Cardinals Lose to Pirates, 3 to 2.

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

All good things must come to an end, and by the same token it's a long major league losing streak that has no turning point.

Mickey Cochrane's Tigers headed pel-mell toward their second straight American League pennant, were rallying today for a fresh start, their mad rush stopped for the moment by the team that has been easiest for them, the Cleveland Indians.

For five innings, General Alvin Crowder maintained the control the Tigers have had over Cleveland most of the season. Cleveland had lost 11 straight to the Tigers, three of them in the present series. The Tigers were nicking steadily at Willis Hudlin and led, 3 to 0.

The end came right there as Crowder started hitting the Cleveland bats with singles, doubles and finally Joe Vosmik's triple that drove in the sixth run of the sixth inning, and likewise ended it as Joe was out trying to stretch the belt into a home run.

That was all the Indians got but it was enough to beat the Tigers, 6 to 5.

The Tigers put up a great fight in the ninth, filling the bases with one out, but Thornton (Lefty) Lee relieved Hudlin, fanned Goslin with three pitches, and forced Bill Rogell to pop up.

The defeat cut the Tigers' lead over the idle Yankees to 2½ games.

The White Sox romped home over the St. Louis Browns, 7 to 2, behind Les Tietje's three-hit pitching, making it three out of four for the series.

The only game in the National League added more discomfort to the world champion Cardinals, who dropped their third match in a four game series to the Pirates, 3 to 2. Red Lucas far outpitched Wild Bill Hallahan, but a home run by Pepper Martin in the fourth, a two base error on a fly ball by Paul Waner in the sixth, followed by Whitehead's single made it close.

Lloyd Waner drove Padden home with the winning run with the third of another set of three singles in the seventh.

Mike Gibbons Bruised A Bit by His Son Jack

By The Associated Press

ST. PAUL Minn.—Mike Gibbons, retired from the ring for years, carries fresh marks of battle on his face—more, perhaps, than he ever wore in his palmy days.

This time it's a "family quarrel" and Mike is on the receiving end, with young Jack, his 21-year-old son, doing the pitching.

"Jack doesn't mean to hit me hard," said Mike, "but some times when we get working on a new series of punches he lets go.

"'The result is this, and this, and this,'" Mike said as he pointed to several bruises and bumps on his otherwise smooth countenance. "But I can forget 'em when I see Jack go like he did the other night beating that tough Frankie Battaglia."

Each day when Jack is training for an opponent Mike dons the gloves with him. Sometimes in the evening when they're sitting at home discussing this and that about the science of the ring they spar with bare fists. That isn't always so easy on Mike, either.

"Most of this was done with the left," Mike stated, pointing to the bumps. "The boy's left isn't as good as it should be yet but he pops his dad plenty hard with it.

"With a left it isn't always the force behind the punch but the number of times it lands. I used several types of jabs when I was fighting. Some of them didn't hurt much, taken individually, but if you land enough in 10 rounds the other fellow is doing plenty of dodging by the tenth."

COLUMBUS CAPTURES LAST 1935 CONTEST IN ST. PAUL, 2 TO 1

Johnny Gill Appears To Have Home Run Honors Clinched For Millers.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 30—At the rate Johnny Gill is hitting the ball over his home right field fence, the American Association home run championship appears more than likely to go to Minneapolis for the fourth straight season.

The Miller youngster set up a long lead early in the season, but eased off during the last invasion of the east. Since Friday, however, he had clouted four homers to give him 25 for the campaign. He connected for two yesterday driving in six runs as the Millers defeated Toledo 10 to 7, to sweep their four-game series. The Minneapolis attack produced 14 hits, well bunched off Boone and Stein. Bob Garbark and Frank Parker contributed two doubles each to the Mud Hens' 13 hit collection.

Columbus won its final game of the season at St. Paul, 2 to 1 behind the five-hit pitching of Bob Klinger. Klinger was removed for a pinch batsman in the eighth, but Handy Mike Ryba held the Saints hitless in the last two innings. Nick Cullop drove in both Red Bird runs with a double and a triple.

Milwaukee backed up a fine job of pitching by Americo Polli with a 16-hit outburst to take the final of the series from Louisville, 14 to 3. Polli held the Colonels to five hits and gave up only one run until the ninth when he eased up.

Indianapolis took both ends of a double header from Kansas City, winning the first, 9 to 6, and the second 8 to 3, in seven innings.

Cosneck Uses Old Trick To Win Wrestling Match

Speedy LaRance Has Whip Hold Halted by Powerful Pile Driver; Woods Gets Decision Over Sauers.

Failing with his old plans of strategy, Dr. Barney Cosneck, former University of Illinois wrestler, was forced to pull a new trick to defeat Speedy LaRance, veteran Canadian grappler, last night at the open air arena on Uncapher avenue.

After each of the popular matmen had gained a fall, LaRance fell victim to the old trick of a head butt and flying tackle. The doctor, never resorting to this weapon before in his appearances here, saved himself from defeat with this powerful pile driver.

Hits Amidship

LaRance had thrown Cosneck to the floor four times with his deadly whip before the Medic got his feet planted for the drive. He hit LaRance amidship and needed only a body press to pin his shoulders.

The two made short work of their battle last night as the third fall came in four minutes, Cosneck scored his in eight and LaRance required 21:30 to take the opening fall.

The Montreal matman used his own particular brand of the grapevine hold to take his fall. He had Cosneck's left leg tied in a knot before the doctor gave up. Cosneck resorted to a rolling keylock to take his first fall.

Both grapplers were cautious in their scrap last night, each watching and planning some trick to fool his foe. Cosneck was unable to get his powerful headlock as LaRance hunched his shoulders, drawing in his head, turtle-fashion. Cosneck also showed he had planned some tricks against the veteran as he came out of a tough spot to win the match.

Sauers Loses Match

George Sauers, the foxy Lincoln, Neb., wrestler, and Joe Woods, Los Angeles light heavy, each gained a fall before Referee Tom Temple gave the match to Woods. Sauers had been warned a number of times to quit using the ropes for leverage before Temple did more than talk. Sauers would slap on his terrific chin lock and brace himself against the ropes.

His chin lock was good for the first fall in 17 minutes. A real, honest-Injun" hammerlock made Sauers say "Uncle" in 12 minutes of the second fall. Four minutes had elapsed in the third setto when Temple raised Woods' arm. As a climax to the second double main go, Woods exchanged punches with Sauers after the decision had been made. He got in two good blows before Temple separated them.

Sauers refrained from using his favorite weapon, the arm stretch, but elected to trick his foe by running for the ropes, tripping the former boxer and pestering his work in general.

Speedy Schaffer of St. Louis and Walter Miller of Omaha mixed plenty of comedy with their 30 minute wrestling match in the opener. Slapping, hair pulling and tumbling were used by both of the participants. Announcement was made from the ringside that a Battle Royal will be held next Monday.

IOWA SALESMAN TOPS PUBLINX GOLF FIELD

Vacation Player Not Baffled by Treacherous Hossier Tourney Course.

By The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 30—Lloyd Nordstrom, a strapping Nordic from Davenport, Ia., and an elusive par that hid in the rough were the targets of the field today as the battle for the National Public links golf championship medal entered the final 18 hole stretch.

While most of his rivals skidded and fell in the traps, trees and creeks of the Charles E. Coffin course, a layout that more than upheld its reputation and name, Nordstrom took a three-stroke lead in the medal fight yesterday with a 71, one over par.

Tied at 74 behind the big blonde from the tall corn state, a salesman on a vacation, were seven players from scattered sections of the nation. They were Tab Boyer and Louis Cyr, Portland, Ore.; Claude Rippy, Washington, D. C., clerk; Delbert Walker, Long Beach, Calif.; Fred Gordon, Santa Monica, Calif.; Mike Balega, Minneapolis, Minn., and Pete Doll of Louisville who led his team into first place in the 36-hole medal play struggle for the team championship. The Louisville squad's first round total was 305.

MINGO NINE TOPS MARYSVILLE, 4-3

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, July 30—The three-game series between the Marysville Athletics and Mingo ended Sunday, with Mingo winning a 15-inning game, 4 to 3. The first of the series was won by Mingo 8 to 7, in an 11-inning battle, and Marysville took the second game, 7 to 2.

Clouden was on the mound for Mingo, allowing Marysville three hits. Bob Thompson, in the box for the Athletics, let Mingo down with two hits and four runs.

PARALLEL PARKING TRIAL URGED HERE

Mr Turner also proposed at yesterday's conference that traffic lanes be marked on Main and Center streets within a block of the public square to aid in handling the right and left turn traffic and through traffic There would be four traffic lanes two on each side of the streets Automobiles contemplating a right turn at the square would drive in the right lane near the curb while through traffic and automobiles contemplating a left turn at the square would continue in the center lanes

Interested in Solution

The division engineer said the highway department is mainly interested in relieving the congested traffic situation in Marion and in bringing about the repeal of a city ordinance providing that there be no right and left turns at Main and Center streets on Saturdays between 1 p m and 10 p m Council probably will repeal the no turn ordinance if parallel parking permanently is adopted officials predicted

With Councilman McDaniel at yesterday's conference in the engineer's office were City Service Director C K Mercer and C A Klunk George G Kleinmaier Carl E Danner and R G Trac representing the business men

Mr Mercer who first proposed the changes in location of highways 95 and 4 said he is vigorously opposed to the parallel parking proposal as a substitute for the relocation of the highway routes in the city "The rerouting first proposed by myself and the state highway department would have enabled us to have had the streets in question widened and resurfaced Mr Mercer said This would have given our downtown area a complete set of excellent streets I don't know of any other way that we will be able to widen and resurface these streets other than with the aid of the state highway department

The streets the service director had predicted would be widened and resurfaced as a result of the changes in location of the highway routes are Prospect Church George and Center streets and Mt Vernon avenue

Cuts Parking Space

Mr Mercer pointed out today that the substitution of parallel parking for angle parking will reduce by 50 per cent the parking space in the downtown business section "This will force the people who use the downtown parking area to seek parking space much farther away from the points where they intend to transact business," he added

Asked whether he thought the proposed changes in the routes of the highways in Marion were permanently dropped the service director said he would consider them temporarily side tracked pending the outcome of the highway department's [illegible] parallel parking is given a trial

Briefly Mr Mercer's proposed changes in the location of highways 95 and 4 were as follows

Under the proposed rerouting of highway No 4 traffic would go over Prospect street from the south city limits to George street where it would turn right to North Main street and left into Main street and out of the city The proposed rerouting of highway No 95 would carry the traffic from the east city limits on Mt. Vernon avenue to East Church street and thence on Church street to Orchard street where it would turn right to West Center street turn left into Center street and continue west out of the city

Frericks Has Plan

City council at its meeting last week also debated a possible change in the location of federal route No 23 to have it cross Center street at State street rather than at Main street as it does at present Council President T J Frericks described the public square as being a focal point for city district and tourist traffic pointing out that four through highways now cross the square

However the state highway department had under advisement changes in highways 95 and 4 only and not federal route No 23 Mr Mercer said at the time he proposed the changes in the routing of 95 and 4 that he did not believe the highway department would consider relocating No 23

Objection to the rerouting of Nos 95 and 4 arose 10 days ago when the highway department through Mr Turner conducted a public hearing on the proposed changes in the municipal court room A group of merchants appeared at the hearing and presented their objections to the proposal asserting that the rerouting of the highways would divert a large percentage of the tourist business from the heart of the city and result in a slump in trade

When asked what highways might be affected by Mr Turner's warning that the highway department would reroute through highways around Marion Councilman McDaniel said it is logical to believe that federal route No 23 and state route No 4 would be the ones taken from the city Mr McDaniel quoted Turner as saying it would be a simple matter to combine No 23 and No 98 and to bring No 4 from Prospect to Waldo and over No 98 The latter highway begins at Waldo and runs five miles east of Marion to Bucyrus

Those favoring the parallel parking plan to relieve congested traffic in the city have expressed an opinion that the highway department threat to reroute Nos 23 and 4 out of Marion is a serious one

Contrasts Planned Economy with Competitive Philosophy of Constitution Framers

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO July 30—A Republican president in 1937 was the prediction left with California G O P leaders today by Col Frank Knox Chicago publisher

The latest of nationally prominent Republicans to visit the former President Herbert Hoover Col Knox declared in an address here last night that a Republican president would take office in 1937 on a platform opposed to planned economy

He contrasted planned economy with what he said was the competitive philosophy visioned by the framers of the United States constitution

The key issues of the next campaign he said would be defense of the constitution a balanced budget stabilized currency and a sound farm policy

Col Knox who denied that he had any aspirations for the Republican nomination left by airplane last night for Chicago completing a swing through California during which he expressed his political views in addresses at Los Angeles and here He said he planned a trip through the east and south soon directly at eliminating Jews altogether from Germany and smashing political Catholicism as well as every other form of political opposition

Want Action Limited

Whenever foreign public opinion becomes antagonistic to the extent that Germany's foreign policy seems in danger Hitler and other leaders attempt to curb the sphere of action of the less responsible sub leaders

A high source said Nazi leaders in council with Reichsfuerher Adolf Hitler decided to curb ultra radical activities against Jews political Catholicism and other menaces because of the reaction abroad to the drive

The press apparently prompted by the propaganda ministry advised immediately and unanimously that other nations should clean their own houses before paying so much attention to the reich.

Play Up Bremen Incident

Hitler's own newspaper the Voelkischer Beobachter carried dispatches and photographs in connection with the tearing of the German flag from the liner Bremen at New York Friday and the seventh Communist Internationale at Moscow

Two photographs of strikers clashing at Sioux Falls S D were displayed on the front page and another of a Negro lynching at Fort Lauderdale Fla. on an inside page

The caption over the strike picture proclaimed

Workers at peace in Germany—turbulence abroad

Beneath the photograph the newspaper said

There must union strikers fight strikers and members of their own nation with sticks and stones because in the freeis state in the world it is not possible to organize a general labor front such as Hitler's peaceful Germany has"

Want Reds Controlled

Other newspapers advised the United States to take care of its communists as it will but warned

America has a duty to prevent them from disturbing friendly relations between the United States and Germany"

Editorials from the United States press condemning the Bremen incident and the refusal by Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York of a masseur's license to a German on the grounds of discrimination against Americans in Germany, were repudiated by Berlin newspapers.

FLETCHER'S WORRIES

"Strange" Illness Hits Boy, Mother Wants Damages

Congressman Brooks Fletcher of Marion has other worries than merely attending sessions of congress

Not so long ago Congressman Fletcher was asked by an indignant mother from the eighth district to file a claim for damages against the government because her son had been sent home from a CCC camp to recuperate from an attack of acute nostalgia." The mother said her boy never had trouble with nostalgia until he left home.

Congressman Fletcher then had to explain to the woman that nostalgia means simply severe homesickness

Fletcher's experience with the nostalgia victim's mother was related by Congressman Stephen Young of Cleveland The Associated Press reported today.

MARIE ANTOINETTE NECKLACE STOLEN

Rubies Valued at $10 000 Are Taken with Other Gems from Fifth Ave Store

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK July 30—A ruby necklace which jewelers claimed once adorned the neck of Marie Antoinette was in the hands of thieves today after a daring jewel robbery

The necklace valued at $10 000 was seized with other gems valued upward from $40 000 during the rush hour late yesterday from the store of Nicolai Miller on Fifth Avenue

Two robbers bound and gagged two clerks and within 10 minutes cleaned out the show windows and showcases

Before the clerks could free themselves the loot-loaded thieves had disappeared in the hurrying crowd

The Marie Antoinette necklace was displayed in the window on a model neck as headless as the queen's came to be Beside it was a card purporting to be certification of its ownership from the French government.

The necklace was made up of 25 flat cut rubies of from one to two carats each set in gold filigree with small diamonds and with a ruby and diamond clasp

SENATORS INTENSIFY SEARCH FOR HOPSON

Threaten To Give All Marshals and G Men Subpoenas for Man Wanted in Probe

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON July 30 The senate lobby committee today threatened to arm every United States marshal and federal agent with subpoenas for H. C. Hopson dominant figure in the Associated Gas and Electric system

Earlier the committee received evidence that the Associated system had spent $791 000 opposing the utility bill including a $75 000 fee to the law firm of Patrick J Hurley secretary of war in the Hoover administration

The threat was issued by Chairman Black as Fred S Burroughs $60 000 a year vice president testified again that he did not know Hopson's whereabouts.

It would be impossible that a man could be in the United States and not know that the committee wanted Mr Hopson Black said referring to the widespread publicity given the committee's search for the official

I agree Burroughs replied

Somebody can get in touch with him Black said sharply

If we don't get in touch with him we are going to turn over a subpoena to every marshal and every other agent of the government

Black added that there were some questions that only Hopson could answer adding emphatically We want him here

FINE DINNER SERVED ABOARD AIR LINER

Information About Cross Country Service Available at City Office

The American Air Lines are offering a fine deluxe sleeper service to Los Angeles. One of the features offered in conjunction with this excellent service is their famous fried chicken dinner served at no cost to the passengers.

A meal such as you have never eaten before on any air line, prepared by southern women cooks, consists of one half fried spring chicken au gratin potatoes, stuffed celery hearts, assorted olives, fresh vegetable salad, fresh fruit compote, assorted pastries, fresh bread and rolls, mixed nuts, mint patties and hot coffee or cold drinks. Just reading that over makes our mouth water.

This sleeper service leaves Columbus daily at [illegible] p m and arrives at Los Angeles at 7 30 a m the following morning. The fare is $1[illegible]00 one way or a round trip fare may be had for $[illegible]8 00. The round trip tickets are good for four months.

There is a companion flight that leaves Columbus at 11 31 p m arriving at Los Angeles at 3 53 p m the following day. All flights make direct connections at Los Angeles for San Diego.

They also have equal fine service to all other points in the United States and Canada.

Mr C F Parshall, city passenger agent located at 116 North State street in Marion will gladly furnish any information you may desire regarding this service. One may purchase their tickets and make reservations at 116 North State street or the Buckeye Bus Depot.

DEMAND IS LARGE FOR USED MAGAZINES

Sparky Tate Has Large Display Owner Will Trade Issues

What is probably the largest selection of used magazines [illegible] all [illegible] is handled by the [illegible] operated by Charles Sparky Tate.

[illegible] Detective, Western [illegible] Popular, [illegible] Weird Stories, Amazing Stories and just about any other fiction magazine can be found there. Current issues as well as back issues are always kept in stock. Demand for used magazines is surprisingly large.

Fiction readers can obtain any of these magazines for five cents each or Mr Tate will trade any one of his magazines for two brought in. Magazines to be traded must be in fair condition and have both front and back covers on.

Mr Tate also buys used magazines the price paid depending on the demand and the number he already has in stock.

Your Health

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Ringworm

Ringworm is one of the most common of all skin disorders. It is especially prevalent during the summer months when many persons congregate barefooted on beaches, in pools and on board walks. The disease is often called athlete's foot because it is prevalent among athletic young men. They pick it up from infected floors in gymnasiums, locker rooms and shower baths.

Ringworm is caused by a fungus or germ called trichophyton. The infection is known to the doctors by a perfectly terrible term, dermatomycosis trichophytina. The disease may affect any part of the body but is usually found on the soles of the feet and between the toes. Ringworm less commonly attacks the face, hands and other parts of the body.

There are a flaking and peeling of the skin between the toes. At times the infection may be slight and the victim thinks the itching so common in athlete's foot is [illegible] due to excessive perspiration of the feet. But in the severe form the skin becomes swollen with blister formation. These blisters soon dry down and after the underlying skin peels off there is left some discoloration of the surface.

It often starts as a blister on a flat reddish spot. This area enlarges, becomes colored in the center and looks not unlike the face of a signet ring. The tissues involved are reddened, scaly and elevated.

Within a short time the center of the ring fades, becoming pinkish in color and soon assumes the same appearance as the adjacent skin. This increases the ring-like appearance which continues for several weeks. After this the trouble disappears but soon appears elsewhere on the body.

Bear in mind that there are many variations in the disease. It may [illegible] the scalp when it is [illegible] Even the nails and adjacent skin may be involved. This form of ringworm is called tinea unguium. An attack of this disease at some [illegible] the development of ridges and thickening of the nails of the toes and fingers.

[illegible] the disease is highly contagious and easily spread from one individual to another every precaution must be taken [illegible] against it. [illegible] has led to the increase until more than 70 per cent [illegible] are afflicted with the infection.

The disease can only be prevented by the adoption of certain precautionary measures. I would advise my readers to avoid all bathing [illegible] swimming pools [illegible] where there is a suspicion [illegible] While at the seashore you can guard against infection by wearing bath sandals or slippers. Do not walk in your bare feet [illegible] to be safe.

"Somebody to see you!"

IF EVERYBODY with something to interest you should come and ring your bell what a nuisance it would be! Think of the swarming, jostling crowd, the stamping of feet on your porch and carpets!

Every day we know of many callers who come to see you. They never jangle the bell—they don't take up your whole day trying to get your attention. Instead they do it in a way that is most considerate of your privacy and your convenience. They advertise in your newspaper!

In this way you have only to listen to those you know at a glance have something that interests you. They make it short, too, so you can gather quickly just what you want to know. You can receive and hear them all without noise or confusion in a very few minutes.

In fairness to yourself look over all the advertisements. The smallest and the largest—you never can be sure which one will tell something you really want to know.

Marion Minister Wed in Ceremony at Roseville, Ohio

THE wedding of Miss Mildred Kessler and Rev. Elmer A. Lehman, pastor of St. Paul's English Lutheran church was solemnized Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in St. Paul's Lutheran church at Roseville, O.

Rev. W. F. Buchholtz officiated. Rev. and Mrs. Carl Kessler of New Pittsburgh, O., brother and sister-in-law of the bride, Miss Gwendolyn Kessler, sister of the bride and Carl Lehman of West Lafayette, O., brother of the bridegroom were the attendants.

The parents of the couple and Mrs. W. F. Buchholtz attended the ceremony.

The bride wore a dress of tea-rose net with a hat of the same shade, and carried an arm bouquet of Talisman roses and gypsophilia.

Mrs. Kessler was in blue net with a hat to match and wore a corsage of American Beauty roses. Miss Kessler wore pink organdy and carried pink roses.

Immediately after the ceremony Rev. and Mrs. Lehman left on a two weeks' trip to South Carolina. After July 15 they will be at home at 428 Windsor street.

Mrs. Lehman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Kessler of Roseville, is a graduate of the Normal School of Wittenberg college in Springfield and for the last five years has been a teacher in the primary grades of the Roseville school.

Rev. Lehman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lehman of West Lafayette, O. He is a graduate of Muskingum college, and Hamma Divinity school of Wittenberg college in Springfield.

Bachelder-Hardin Wedding Read At Trinity Church

REV. LAWRENCE A. WOOD, pastor, read the double ring wedding ceremony which united in marriage Miss Evelyn Bachelder and Vance Harden Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Trinity Baptist church.

Palms and ferns formed a background for the vases and baskets of roses and garden bloom which decorated the altar. Two large white wicker baskets filled with white hydrangia, feverfew and Shasta daisies stood at either side of the pulpit, and centering the altar at the back of the pulpit was a large Japanese vase filled with Dorothy Perkins roses. Completing the arrangement were small brass containers holding smaller bouquets of Dr. Van Fleet roses. Ferns covered the altar railing and ferns and palms banked the choir loft where baskets filled with Dorothy Perkins roses gave a touch of contrasting coloring. The altar was lighted with six six-branched candelabra.

Brother Gives Bride

The bride, lovely in heavy ivory satin and a long lace-edged veil, advanced to the altar on the arm of her brother, Perry Bachelder, who gave her in marriage. The slim lines of the dress were accentuated by the long graceful train, outlined by a pleated edging of the satin. The jacket which covered the formal bodice of the dress, closed high at the throat with a suggestion of a cowl neckline in front and fastened with tiny buttons down the back. The long sleeves which ended in points over her hands, repeated the button trimming from the elbow to the tip of the point. A wreath of orange blossoms held the French net veil far back on her hair. She carried white roses and gypsophilia in an arm bouquet. Her only ornament was a tiny diamond wristwatch, a gift from the bridegroom.

Mrs. Harold Quigley of Akron, roommate of the bride at Denison university, was matron of honor and the bride's niece, little Miss Jean Marie Bachelder, was flower girl.

Mrs. Quigley wore a floor-length gown of pink lace with a turban of the same shade trimmed with a white nosevell. Her flowers were an arm bouquet of white and green and pink painted daisies, tied with green ribbon. The flower girl wore a shepherdess frock of pale green organdy, a double ruche of the material almost touching the floor. A pink satin sash marked the high waistline and in her hair she wore a large pink satin bow. The bride's gift to her matron of honor was a bracelet of rhinestones set in pink enamel, and to her flower girl, a locket.

Joseph Keefe Jr. of Bucyrus attended Mr. Harden as bestman. George Harden, brother of the bridegroom, served as head usher and lighted the candelabra. The other ushers were Howard Hoffman of Lima, Dr. Richard E. Eicher and Robert Uncapher.

Music Recital

Miss Grace Durfee, organist for the wedding, and George Wingett, tenor and violinist, gave a 20-minute recital of wedding music preceding the Wagner wedding march which signaled the approach of the bridal party. Miss Durfee played "Wedding Day," [illegible]. Mr. Wingett's violin selection was "Salut d'Amour," Elgar, and his tenor song was "I Love You Truly," Bond. Immediately preceding the wedding march, Miss Durfee played "O' the Little Springtime," Stebbins, and during the ceremony played softly "Love's Old Sweet Song," Molloy, and "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life," Herbert. The recessional was the Mendelssohn march.

Mrs. E. H. Harden, mother of the bridegroom, was in a gray and soft blue flowered crepe with a white picture hat and white accessories and wore a corsage of gardenias.

A reception for 75 guests was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Harden of 589 East Church street. The house was decorated with garden flowers. A tiered wedding cake and candelabra decorated the bride's table. The buffet table was centered with a miniature bride and bridegroom beneath a bower of roses and surrounded by greenery. Miss Naomi Rinehart poured, assisted by Mrs. Howard Hoffman of Lima. Assisting in the dining room were Miss Emily Dale Wingett, Miss Helen Grossglaus and Miss Norma Barrett.

Leave for Lakes

Mr. and Mrs. Harden left on a short wedding trip to the lakes and upon their return will be at home at 180 Carhart street. For traveling Mrs. Harden wore a shirtwaist type dress of printed triple sheer with a background of the new Paris purple shade. With it she wore a white string lace coat, white hat and white accessories.

Both were graduated from Harding High school with class of '29 and both attended Denison university at Granville. Mrs. Harden is affiliated with Alpha Omicron Pi sorority and Mr. Harden with Kappa Sigma fraternity. Mrs. Harden has been employed as teacher of the third grade at the Pearl Street school. Mr. Harden is an electrical appliances salesman with Montgomery Ward & Co.

Brother of Bride
Reads Service

The single ring service was read by the bride's brother Rev. H. L. Orians when Miss Bertha E. Orians, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Orians of 181 North Seffner avenue became the bride of F. A. Brady III Friday evening in Bethel Evangelical church at Milwaukee, Wis. An organ prelude preceded the service read shortly before 8 o'clock and Mrs. H. L. Orians sang "O Promise Me."

Large baskets filled with peonies and lilies stood at either side of the altar which was lighted with tapers.

Miss Orians' gown was of white [illegible] satin lace and she wore a tiara of orange blossoms. Her flowers were a bouquet of matricaria and carnations tied with a large white satin bow. The men in the wedding party wore boutonnieres of carnations and gardenias.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the [illegible] Hotel. Tapers lighted the table which was decorated with snapdragons and roses, and roses were the guest favors.

The couple left on a wedding trip to the Great Lakes and Canada and upon their return will be at home in Cleveland. The bride's going away gown was of dove skin powder blue with which she wore a Dubonnet crepe coat. Her accessories were in harmonizing tones.

Mrs. Brady attended North Central college at Naperville, Ill., and the University of Illinois and has been employed as an instructor in the schools at Cleveland. Mr. Brady attended the University of Illinois.

Mr. and Mrs. Orians, parents of the bride attended the wedding.

Father Enjoys Reading Boys' Lists of Toys and Livestock for Trip.

THERE was a [illegible] [illegible] and my children.

I did not know whether I was glad or sorry at his decision for I knew that with the [illegible] of a man who [illegible] many others for years with his [illegible] being questioned he [illegible] his advice to be a mandate. He never would have offered it unasked but once I had requested it, he plainly expected me to follow it.

I think I felt a kinship to the creator of Frankenstein's monster as I realized my father's attitude. But there was nothing I could do save murmur a grateful acquiescence to what he had said. But I was conscious as I made my reply to him that two beings warred within me.

Not Just Course?

One felt troubled at his decision, felt that it was compelling me to a course neither right nor just to my family. The other, I was guiltily aware, was rejoicing that for the present, at least, the decision had been taken out of my hands. For, facing the almost immediate departure of my father and the prospect that he might never return from the mysterious and dangerous mission upon which he was embarking, I knew that I would abide by the judgment he had just given.

"Thank you so much, Father," I murmured. "I knew you would know far better than I what is best for me to do."

He did not waste any time in courteous, conventional disclaimer.

"I gained that knowledge in a bitter school, my daughter," he said. As I looked up, startled, he bent and kissed me, then loosened the clasp of his arms around me and stood up, smiling.

"A truce to sad memories!" he said. "We must not let our last moments together be somber ones. By the way, did you not promise me a smile and a bit of cheer out of the lists the boys had made of the pets and toys they wished to take to the mountains with them?"

I thanked my stars that I had salvaged the list Junior had torn up and had preserved the other one, as I took them from my handbag and held them out to him. And his genuine, hearty laughter a minute later, as he perused the "list of livestock owned by Richard Graham II and Roderick Harrison I." told me that I had made no mistake in bringing the lists to him for a final mirthful thread in the somber woof of his departure.

"They missed no possible item, did they?" he said. "But what character they showed in giving them up at your behest! Richard told me how beautifully you managed them."

I stared at him in amazement which turned to affectionate tenderness as I realized what my husband had done.

Was Dicky's Work

"Why! Father!" I said. "I had nothing to do with their decision. Indeed I expected a long and nerve-racking argument, but Dicky, with one master stroke, solved the problem beautifully. Isn't that like him, to say nothing of his own strategy and to give me all the credit?"

"Very like him," my father agreed. "But tell me just what he did. It must have been something unusually clever."

"It was," I answered, and told him briefly how Dicky had adroitly let the boys know that he wanted extra guards at the camp, but could not consider them because their whole time would be taken up with their toys and pets.

"You should have seen them, father," I said. "The words were hardly out of Dicky's mouth before they were staging a great renunciation act."

"Just another adaptation of Tom Sawyer whitewashing the fence," my father murmured, then folded the lists and gave them back to me.

"I should preserve these carefully," he advised. "The two boys will enjoy looking them over 10 years from now."

"I'll keep them safe, never fear," I promised, and then with a realization that I must not prolong this interview, precious as the moments were, I rose abruptly.

"I must go and see to the boys now," I said. "They have been promised that they may come in and say goodby to you, under the impression of course, that the farewell is because of their trip. But they are not coming until they are all ready for bed. It will be a pajama, bathrobe and slipper call, for I want them to get into bed soon after they have seen you. I want them sound asleep before you leave."

Future Co-Eds Are Dance Guests At Country Club

A LOVELY social event of the early summer was the dance at which the Marion Pan-Hellenic association members were hostesses Saturday evening at the Marion Country club. Guests included a number of young women who are planning to leave this fall for college.

Baskets of vari-colored garden flowers decorated the lounge where 160 couples danced from 9 to 1 o'clock, to a program played by Paul Wheeler's orchestra.

Mrs. E. Paul Bachman was chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the dance. She was assisted by Mrs. Merle Hamilton, Mrs. Fred Artz, Mrs. John K. Bartram, Mrs. Frank Foster, Mrs. Howard Geer, Mrs. Wendell Wiant and Miss Martha Tschanen.

Another social event of the association's calendar will be a tea at which the members will be hostesses in September for the pleasure of a group of young women entering college.

Air mail services are being extended throughout Central China and highway, railway and telephone construction increased.
